Title	Description
The Story of Water	This 40-minute documentary from Uisce Éireann focuses on the critical value of our most precious natural resource and explores the ongoing threats to its future—both globally and in Ireland.
Wild Waters: The Magic of Ireland's Rivers and Lakes	Richard Nairn is an ecologist who has been visiting waterways around Ireland for over half a century, fascinated by how they sustain and enrich our lives. In this talk, Richard describes his year-long adventure to explore every stretch and tributary of the Avonmore River and other rivers, lakes, woodlands, ponds and canals in Ireland.
Flow	Documentary explores the importance of water as a vital resource and the global challenges surrounding its management. Through interviews with experts, investigative reporting, and compelling storytelling, provides an educational look at water issues around the world and encourages environmental stewardship.
Could thirsty AI worsen the water crisis? People & Power Documentary	Data centres consume massive amounts of water and electricity as they store and process the data generated by our online activity, from social media to shopping to cloud storage. This documentary looks at the building of data centres by Big Tech in places like drought-stricken Queretaro, in Mexico, talking with locals who are struggling to get by on rationed water as more facilities are built.
Explained: The World's Water Crisis	Short Netflix documentary that explores how the global water crisis is at an inflection point. How do we price our most valuable resource, while also ensuring access to it as a human right?
Losing the Thread	A short documentary about the costs of fast fashion and textile waste made by the four Local Authorities of Dublin. Learn about what fast fashion is, where it comes from, how it is marketed to you, the intentions behind it and what happens to it when the pieces are no longer wanted.
Just Eat It: A Food Waste Story	We all love food. So how could we possibly be throwing nearly 50% of it in the trash? Filmmakers and food lovers Jen and Grant dive into the issue of waste from farm, through retail, all the way to the back of their own fridge. What they find is truly shocking.
